BRITISH ENVOYS FIND RUSSIA "IMPROVING"

London, Nov. 20.—A mission of ten British business men, popularly known as "The Business Mission," from the fact that one of its members is related to the Prime Minister, recently returned from Russia with what is said to be a very optimistic report on conditions in that country.

Among the vital points the business men noted, it is stated, are the death of Communism, the trust of the people in the Soviet government and the general improvement everywhere.

The government at Moscow, members of the mission believe will recognize Russia's old debts when the development of the country has been assured. Russia has a favorable trade balance and her finances are on the way to stability, but credit is still badly needed.

Since its inception ten years ago, the Helping Hand Christmas Basket Fund of the American has fed a total of 703,116 persons. An average of 100,000 pounds of food has been distributed every year. To bring good cheer to the homes of needy families, the American has raised a total of $113,219.87.

71 CENTS ON BREAD AND WATER

San Quentin, Calif., Nov. 20.—As a result of their refusal to work after they had demanded the release of J. B. All of the prisoners are said to be members of the I. W. W.

Recently Childs and more than fifty other prisoners were released from solitary confinement after Childs had voluntarily announced that he was ready to return to work.

COOLIDGE WILL SUBMIT THREE NEW TREATIES

Washington, Nov. 20.—Presentation to the Senate of several new treaties has been arranged for by President Coolidge and Secretary Hughes with Chairman Lodge of the Foreign Relations Committee. The Harding proposal for American participation in the World Court is already before the Senate. The new treaties to be transmitted include: The treaty of Commerce between the United States and Turkey, re-establishing relations with Turkey. The Mexican treaty which paved the way for recognition by the United States of the Obregon government and provides for protection of American property in Mexico. The Hughes-Curzon treaty extending the shore limits of American operations against rum runners and providing for seizure under seal of "ships' stores" of liquor on British vessels. The Canadian Halibut Fisheries to be submitted. It was ratified last Winter, but turned down by Canada because a Senate amendment barring British halibut fishermen from Canadian markets. It is planned to have the Senate strike out this provision.

Junior League to Present the 'Chocolate Soldier,' Betty Alden Reports

By BETTY ALDEN
BOSTON'S Junior League—come to take the place of the Sewing Circle—is proving itself a lively organization. Just now plans are under way for a revival performance of the "Chocolate Soldier," which the league will put on probably the latter part of January. Everyone, of course, is eager to see how this performance of the Junior "Leagueers" will compare with shows given by the Vincent Club girls. The latter have proved themselves able to vie with professionals, so that those taking part in "The Chocolate Soldier" will have a high mark to reach.

APPROPOS of the Junior League, there are patrolled the daily luncheon meetings served at the league's rooms on Boylston street. Miss Sarah Winslow of Chestnut street, a prime mover in all the activities of the league, is in charge of these luncheons, for which, by the way, the debutantes volunteer their services as waitresses.

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE W. VAILLANT are giving a reception this afternoon at their Commonwealth avenue home for their debutante daughter, Miss Constance Vaillant. The family only recently returned from a Summer spent in Europe.

FROM stately Queen Elizabeth to the inlaid pugs, the grand march of the Shakespeare festival made one of the most colorful sights ever seen in the ballroom of the Copley-Plaza. There was Mrs. S. Parker Brewster, as the haughty English queen, with the well-known Mr.

MISS ELIZABETH THORNDIKE
"Betty" Thorndike, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Thorndike, was of the large society group taking part in the Shakespeare festival. Miss Thorndike was presented last Winter.

Hoopers-Hoopers following in her train as Lord Burleigh. As this group marched around the room, there was a delightful air of interest in the corner in which sat Mrs. Brown's daughter, blonde-haired Mrs. Henry Faxon (Edith Bremer), one of the loveliest brides in several lines.

Mrs. J. Weston Allen led another group as Mary Queen of Scots, who came to such a tragic end at the hands of Queen Elizabeth. A episode of chaffing followed Miss Ina Claire, the well-known actress, as she marched around the hall as "Desdemona," while a swarthy Othello came close behind.

To my mind, the two little Princesses of the Tower, from "Richard the Third," were of the best in the entire procession. With their slim little figures clad in black velvet suits and their golden curls, they looked remarkably like the famous painting of the brutally murdered princesses.

The large group of brace girls and boys added plenty of color to the throng, while the delicately-dressed - listed costumes of the Fairies from "The Merry Wives of Windsor" were pleasing to the eye.

Miss Grace Cushing, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Cushing of Milton was one of the "brace girls."

But it would take much too long for a description of everything and everyone in the festival, which must have netted a tidy sum for the coffers of the Francis Jewett Repertory Theatre.

WALTON, OUT, LAUNCHES NEW COURT FIGHT

Oklahoma City, Okla., Nov. 20.—J. C. Walton's gubernatorial career, as a spectacle as it was brief, is ended.

Deposed by a Senate court of 1 m eachment which found him guilty of charges of moral turpitude, corruption in office, neglect of duty and incompetence.

By his term of office as Oklahoma's fifth Governor was broken off after little more than ten months, sensational last.

But, as his successor prepared formally to take over the reins of government today, Walton grided himself for a last effort to regain office by invoking the aid of the United States courts, clinging tenaciously to the plea that he has not been given a fair trial.

His next move will be made tomorrow, when his legal staff is to move before a Federal judge here for a rehearing of his application for a retroactive injunction to annul the action of the court of impeachment.

That filing, an appeal would be taken, as a last resort to the United States Supreme Court, accompanied by a petition for a writ to declare him the incumbent until the case is thrashed out before the tribunal.

The deposed executive's original application was denied the day before the impeachment trial opened and observers saw scant likelihood that the decision will be reversed after the hearing. Neither is it probable, they say, that the United States Supreme Court will intervene should the local Federal Court affirm its previous ruling on grounds that it has no jurisdiction in the case.

WOULD FINE SLOPPY STREET CONTRACTORS

Representative Coleman E. Kelly of Dorchester today filed a bill at the State House asking the Legislature to enact a law and to impose a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $1,000 for every offense where a contractor or public service corporation fails to keep a street in satisfactory condition after completing excavations and repairs. It is asked that the amount of the fine with damage done or obligations left be on a sliding scale commensurate with the damage.

BRITISH DELAY PUZZLES FRANCE

Paris, Nov. 20 (A.P.)—The meeting of the Council of Ambassadors called for a 9 o'clock this afternoon will not be held, it was announced shortly after 4 p. m. Lord Curzon, the British Ambassador, notified the secretary that his government, owing to stress of business, was unable to communicate his instructions in time for today's meeting.

The instructions are expected to arrive in season for a meeting tomorrow.

The feeling here today was just as optimistic as it was pessimistic yesterday for the agreement to send a note to Germany has been fully endorsed by the French and Belgian Cabinets and, judging from the tone of London, will be endorsed by the British, although the French find it difficult to understand why London takes so long to decide. Despite the improved outlook, gloomy forebodings for the future persist. Many forebodings for the future persist. Many forebodings for the future persist.

A new feature is the equality

Paris.—The Egyptian prince, Kemal Edine, who recently acquired a French automobile equipped with caterpillar wheels for traveling over the desert, plans to make a tour from Egypt to the Sahara by way of Libya. He will be accompanied by three French mechanics.

with which this pessimistic element looks forward to such a break. The opinion seems to be gaining ground that France and Great Britain would get along better if they had a break would Germany of the support also feels she is getting now from London and that she would be more tractable if she found herself dealing with a France unfettered by the divergent views of the British government.

No Ultimatum to Berlin, Says London

London, Nov. 20 (A.P.)—British government officials considered today that all danger of disagreement with France on the question of the use of Crown Prince and the resumption of inter-allied military control in Germany had passed. The proposed joint note to Germany will not be in the form of an ultimatum, nor will it give the Germans a time limit within which they must comply with the allied conditions. Neither will it demand an immediate formal reply. It will be mainly in the character of a firm, peremptory notice to Berlin that the Allies intend to reannex the occupied territory of Germany and to insist that certain chosen areas still under the authority of the Central government.

Bavaria and Berlin Nearer Break

Munich, Bavaria, Nov. 20 (A.P.)—Dr. von Kahr's discontent with the central government under Stresemann is deepening, and a spoken man for the dictator said today Bavaria would follow an independent policy except in such matters where it appears possible to work with Berlin. It had become a question, he said, whether the people here should starve while waiting for Berlin to do something, or whether the initiative should be taken here.

Germany Has 15 Million More Than She Can Feed

Berlin, Nov. 20.—Experts estimate that the German Republic can feed only three-fourths of the population without importing food; in other words, Germany has at least 15,000,000 more people than she can sustain. This estimate, however, is based on a greatly reduced per capita consumption. It also contemplates the use of nearly all the Reich's barley for food and none of it for the brewing of beer.

GIRL GAMBOLES FOR ONE WEEK MORE OF LIFE

Camden, N. J., Nov. 20.—Little Helen Hamilton is making a last stand against the darkness that is closing down upon her. Her arms are like lath, her eyes like dim and guttering candles and every breath she takes is a breath of pain, but she has gathered all her feeble strength in a back-to-the-wall struggle for one more week of life. She wants to celebrate her birthday—her real-for-sure birthday. About a week ago Helen and Helen's mother and her doctor, all believed that her ruptured eardrum wouldn't allow her more than a day or two longer of life. So she had a birthday party then because she did not think she would last until the night day came around. But hour after hour passed and one day melted miraculously into another and still somehow the feeble glow of consciousness remained. So a faint hope has taken possession of what is left of Helen; not a hope for a recovery but a hope for one more birthday, with gum drops, colored popcorn and sugared pastries all about her on the counterpane, dandelions with silver globules rattling from the mantle, and the candles of her birthday cake burning on the nearby table. The birthday cake is already made and the other day her mother lit the candles. The thirteenth one flickered a moment then puffed out. But Helen refuses to be daunted by this. She says she will hang on somehow and everyone who comes to see her is invited to the party. She was "at home" today to a number of friends, and still others came and left messages of sympathy or gifts without seeing her. Helen's injury occurred when she fell from her cot, and she was so faint and was put to bed. She has never been on her feet since.

MAKE PROFITERS PAY BONUS—BERGER

Chicago, Nov. 20.—War profiteers should pay the soldier bonus, Victor L. Berger of Milwaukee declared in a written statement. He said he was against a sales tax for the bonus because it would mean the soldiers would have to pay their own bonus by an indirect tax. He said he favored the proposal of Secretary Mellon to lower the surtax and agreed with him that earned income should pay lighter taxes than income from business or investment.

Whose Merchandise has been filling these 80,000 bags?

For nine months, eighty thousand shoppers have been carrying home daily purchases in Boston American shopping bags. That many people, most of them women, secured these bags through The Boston American.

This use of 80,000 bags has forged another significant link between The Boston American as an advertising medium and the actual purchasing of goods. For the shopping bag suggests The Boston American, and the paper has thus become associated in the minds of the 80,000 bag users with the powerful word "Buy."

Boston American advertising is put to a daily utility test as have been the handy bags. It is read—and used.

"Americanized" advertising helps put merchandise into shopping bags.

A POWERFUL EXAMPLE

The handy shoppers bags were placed on sale in the Boston American business office February 12, 1923, for 33 cents and three consecutive coupons from the paper. Mail buyers added 5 cents, making mail order price 38 cents plus the coupons.

Advertising space averaged 233 lines per insertion and totalled for five weeks 6,873 lines, an aggregate expenditure of $2450.01 at regular rates. In the first nine days 31,265 bags were sold. By March 17th over 80,000 bags had gone to readers, or an average of 2,666 bags per day.

The advertising expenditure per bag was 3 cents.

The sale proved convincingly the responsiveness of Boston American readers to advertising. By the very nature of the article, most of these 80,000 purchasers were women, a powerful example of the fact that the Boston American "goes home."

PRIVACY FOR MOTHERS AT BABY SHOW

The organization of the personnel of The Better Babies Conference which will be held shortly by the Boston Health Department, assisted by the Boston American, in Archbishop John J. Williams Hall, in the municipal building, corner of West Brookline street and Shawmut avenue, South End, is fast rounding into shape.

Dr. Frederick J. Bailey, of Dorchester, Deputy Health Commissioner, in charge of the division of child hygiene of the Health Department, is busy at work purchasing the necessary equipment for the examination of thousands of babies in Boston.

PRIVACY FOR MOTHERS.

Special equipment such as baby weighing machines, scales, tables, cribs, blankets and screens to insure privacy for each mother and baby will soon be installed and full details of the organization, date and other information will be announced by Dr. Francis X. Mahoney, Health Commissioner, and Bailey.

Referrals are coming in to the Health Department office from mothers who are anxious to have their babies examined and screened and of appointment are being prepared so that they may be dropped into the mail just as soon as the date for the first examinations is decided upon by Dr. Bailey.

PLANS BEING PUSHED.

Plans are being pushed to completion, and with the crops of expert physicians and nurses the conference will be in full swing within a short time. It is expected that those mothers who filed with the health authorities the coupon printed in the Boston American, making an application for the examination of their baby, that the Health Department will send them the date of appointment this week.

Dr. Mahoney said:

"The importance of a well child can be overestimated, either in health or finances, and this is most apparent in the case of infants."

Alfonso Introduces Primo Rivera as His "Mussolini"

Nov. 20.—"Here is my Mussolini," said King Alfonso, introducing General Primo Rivera, president of the Spanish Military Directorate, to Dr. Italo Balbo, commander-in-chief of the Italian National Militia.

Premier Mussolini and General Primo Rivera compared notes for half an hour.

King Alfonso placed a wreath upon the tomb of Italy's Unknown Warrior.

With Queen Victoria and General Primo, he visited the tombs of former Italian Kings, the Forum Galleries and the Colosseum.

The visitors lunched privately with King Alfonso, Emanuele and Queen Elena at the Quirinal.

True in the case of the young helpless infant, good health means much not only in early life but in later years. It means the strength and power to do our work in life thoroughly, it adds to our happiness and comfort, and it makes life's work easier for all concerned.

PROPER FOOD IMPORTANT.

"Defects in body and in mind that are not corrected lead to a dull, inactive mind, making one careless, indifferent and sluggish, maybe a dependent on someone else."

"One of many reasons that make a child healthy is proper feeding, and his infancy the best food is mother's milk. Examination in this and in other communities have proved that the breast-fed infant has chances that are six to eight times greater of surviving the first year of existence than the bottle-fed infant. This importance cannot be stressed too much. There are no harmful bacteria in breast milk, it does not carry the germs of contagion, it is ready when needed, and never gets too hot or too cold, and is seldom the cause of colic troubles; finally, it is also a great saving."

ASKS STATE MEDALS FOR FUTURE HEROES

A bill calling for awarding of medals to all members of the Massachusetts National Guard who perform extraordinary duty at risk of their lives in the future was filed at the State House today by Representative Henry L. Blawie of Boston.

The bill was filed on petition of Walter Gilman Page, representing the Sons of the American Revolution. It provides that awards be made by the Legislature, with presentation by the governor for those distinguished themselves conspicuously for gallantry or acts of intrepidity at the risk of their lives and beyond the call of duty."

"YANKEE GOLD" BARS IBANEZ FROM CUBA

Havana, Nov. 20.—An invitation to Vicente Ibanez, Spanish author, to lecture before the students of Havana University, has been withdrawn by the Federation of Students. The reason for the action is that Ibanez had "sold his pen and words for Yankee gold" and also that the Federation considered him opposed to Latin-American ideas.

OUR SECOND MILESTONE!

In just two years Checker Taxi has become by far the largest taxicab company in New England. Progress is our watchword.

We pass our second anniversary milestone this month. Think of it—only two years ago a few of our clean, lowest rate taxis, with dependable drivers, appeared on the streets of Boston, were an instant success, and we have never stopped growing.

"More cabs" was the word to us from a pleased public. Our facilities were expanded in every direction. Amplified telephone service, new garages, and more cabs were provided for. And more important than ever, courteous, safe drivers, and the lowest rates of fare, our merit, we are ever mindful of our trust.

But never was our expansion made the cause for even a temporary slackening in our rigid rules of service, courtesy, and cleanliness. Little or big, the fundamentals of our obligation to the public remain always the same. Having won the confidence of the public by sheer merit, we are ever mindful of our trust.

Always the lowest rate of fare is not an idle boast on our part. We know that the public is interested in still lower rates and after each reduction in rate, our answer still is "give us the volume and down will go our fares, still lower as soon as the volume permits."

Checker Taxi policies are dictated by the public. Our chief aim is to give you the kind of service you want.

We want your advice and criticism, particularly of the constructive kind.

Checker Taxi is the pioneer low fare high class taxi service and has made itself a Boston institution in two short years because of its ability to render the greatest good to the greatest number for the least money that enable us to continue to serve.

Watch us continue to grow!

Lewis Laboratories,
Chicago, Ill.
Gentlemen:

Believing I owe you a testimonial, I will tell you and to the world that I consider your new gland systematic treatment the greatest remedy of modern times. I have doctored for years without any relief and when you read of my story you will understand why I am so grateful to you. I used to be an actor in the Musical Show business and did lots of rough and tumble work. Years ago from overexertion I lost my manly vigor, my legs felt as if they were made of lead, my back ached and in one night I had to drag my left leg and always wore the toes of my shoes soles off. Was numb across the small of my back, couldn't get up or down stairs. In fact I was a wreck every way. I tried everything without any help. I tried your gland treatment as a last resort. After three weeks' treatment I found I could all down and rub my feet in the dirt. Before I could't raise my foot six inches from the floor. After five weeks the paralysis disappeared. I could walk or run as good as any man. My vigor has returned and I feel like twenty-five years younger. And everybody says I look it too. I honestly believe your gland treatment should be brought to the notice of everybody who has lost his health and pep and suffers as I did. I know it will help them for everything I have tried failed to help me, and everybody whom I have recommended to try your gland treatment says the same. I am a Moose here, member L. O. O. M., number 17, Moose Lodge No. 27 and my lodge brothers will sign their names to any statement I make.

Yours truly,
John Robert Andrews,
938 East Georgia St., Indianapolis, Ind.

Build Up Your Glands and You Build Up Your Strength and Endurance

A Special Treatment for Women Also

You will notice in the coupon that we ask whether the treatment is intended for male or female.

This is necessary because the two treatments are absolutely different as to formulas. The female treatment contains Lutein and is particularly recommended for the ailments to which women are most commonly subject. Any Physician will testify as to the wonderful value of Lutein for women's troubles and will also understand that this substance would be of no benefit if administered in a treatment for men. We mention this one point of difference to emphasize the fact that the Lewis Treatment for Women is especially prepared for that sex.

Here is the Experience of One Michigan Woman

Lewis Laboratories,
Chicago, Ill.

Enclosed you will find money order for which please rush my next treatment, as I am nearly out of my last supply. Your treatment for the rebuilding of the glands is a most wonderful discovery, and words cannot express my gratitude to you for what the treatment has done for me.

Nine years ago I went to the hospital here to have a fibroid tumor removed, and on the operating table several other organs were also removed. Since then my life has been miserable. I suffered so much that I would have committed suicide, were it not for my two sons. I tried everything without any relief, and the agony was awful. I was advised to try your new gland treatment and I have thanked my creator ever since. The first week I noticed a remarkable change; my head seemed clearer, my whole system felt lighter and I improved so rapidly, I had a new ambition instilled in me to live.

I am recovering so rapidly that I don't want to interrupt the treatment, so please rush this to me. I have recommended your gland treatment to so many people. I again want to thank you for what your treatment has done.

Yours for health,
Mrs. Fanny Griggs,
1508 Burton St., Flint, Mich.

COACH BOB FISHER SAW SOME WEAKNESSES IN YALE ELEVEN

By NICK FLATLEY

Yale has sprinkled a whole lot of respect for its football team into the Harvard camp. The boys who went down and south of the Eli Saturday, saw plenty of make them think and ponder. He returns from the Brown game didn't help to put them in an optimistic mood, either.

The Crimson athletes are in for the three hardest days work in their speckled young careers just now.

Harvard has hopes, of course; could all that has happened in other years, but the Fisher crew, of advisers and directors, realize that something more than a win can be made out of this.

Coach Robert was one of the experts who went down to scout the Eli. He saw enough to make him bawled that his season had been made a partial success by the tick mark of Princeton. He isn't admitting defeat, or anything of the kind.

"Yale has a fine team," he admitted. "They have a bunch of good players who are lightning fast, and they all know how to run. They have a lot of the team has weaknesses. We will naturally pay for them. It is very hard on my mind, but we have made a partial success by the tick mark of Princeton. He isn't admitting defeat, or anything of the kind."

Some of our veterans are injured, and even if they do run to shape for the game, they will not be as hard as that kind of a "veteran" requires. But Yale will have plenty of competition. We are only a few days to work in, and they will be the busiest and hardest of the season."

Part of the matter is, we imagine, that Harvard has seen a sort of a two in the Yale line. Coaches of the Blue have been able to get into the game, and then run through to victory.

The Harvard team, with all great victories, it proved that in spots in the Brown game, even after the Harvard had the contest all turned away. Two or three of the Crimson marches down the field showed an offensive speed and conception it attack entirely new to Stadium affairs the Fall.

Brown was by far the better team, even so, the two touchdowns that meant victory were somewhat lucky. Ruffin's blocked drop kick happened because a substitute didn't fulfill an assignment. His a long run hardly could have been made with a regular quarterback in here. On the defense, the Harvard quarters stay back until a play is over.

They don't run up when a smash is apparently failed. Young Men have made that mistake, but not today. He made that mistake, but not today. He made that mistake, but not today.

Yale's Captain Is Star Kicker

Forward passes should feature the Boston College-Vermont clash, as both teams on my mind was whole and the team had had some chance to play together over more. I don't think we could beat Yale, with all our power.

Some of our veterans are injured, and even if they do run to shape for the game, they will not be as hard as that kind of a "veteran" requires. But Yale will have plenty of competition. We are only a few days to work in, and they will be the busiest and hardest of the season."

HALF HOUR FOR YALE VARSITY ON SIGNALS

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 20.—Light work was the order for the Yale varsity in its first practice for the Harvard game. The practice was held at the bowl and was secret.

All of the varsity men, who were in the game on Saturday with the exception of Luman, who is out with a twisted knee and Luman reported.

Luman will report today and all probability will be able to start the game against Harvard.

In his place Deaver played while the position at left end was filled by Bligham.

The team went through signals for half an hour and that was the end of the work.

In addition to the signal drill for the first time there was a scrimmage on Pratt Field between the third team and the scrubs, but there were no scores.

For a while Neddingler took Neale's place at left halfback, as he did on Saturday. Doney Eckart, left guard, who has been in the scrimmage since Saturday's game as a result of a bruise, went through signals and showed no signs of his injury.

The second side lined up for signal drill. Several members of that team were in the game on Saturday. The team was as follows: Lincoln and guard; Miller and Blatterworth, tackle; Esposito and Pittsburg, guard; Landon, center; Murphy, quarterback; Stevens, left halfback; Hench, right halfback; and Cottle, fullback.

Fullback and Olney Hill from Exeter fill the guard positions, with Kendrick between them. Red Marshall, a guard, and Art Leblay, a young center, are two Vermont stars who are sure to see action against it.

Luman will report today and all probability will be able to start the game against Harvard.

In his place Deaver played while the position at left end was filled by Bligham.

The team went through signals for half an hour and that was the end of the work.

In addition to the signal drill for the first time there was a scrimmage on Pratt Field between the third team and the scrubs, but there were no scores.

For a while Neddingler took Neale's place at left halfback, as he did on Saturday. Doney Eckart, left guard, who has been in the scrimmage since Saturday's game as a result of a bruise, went through signals and showed no signs of his injury.

The second side lined up for signal drill. Several members of that team were in the game on Saturday. The team was as follows: Lincoln and guard; Miller and Blatterworth, tackle; Esposito and Pittsburg, guard; Landon, center; Murphy, quarterback; Stevens, left halfback; Hench, right halfback; and Cottle, fullback.

Leo Doucette, at fullback, is bound to know the trick a lot of trouble. He formerly attended Lehigh, and at present is the line punger of the Vermont backfield. He is a big, right tackle, weighs 260 pounds, and the other tackle, Art Hanna, is only a few notches below Doucette in sub-tackle, and likely to play.

Fullback and Olney Hill from Exeter fill the guard positions, with Kendrick between them. Red Marshall, a guard, and Art Leblay, a young center, are two Vermont stars who are sure to see action against it.

Boston Championship Goes to Winner

With the exception of the usual post-season games, these are the last six days for school football. The season will close on Thanksgiving Day.

In this short spell, the best contests of the season are booked. The six week contest between English High and Commerce High at Braves Field is a whopper.

The Boston high school championship is the title that goes to the winner of this game. According to the standings, English and Commerce are dead even for first place.

Coach Ed Wilson was upstaged football men at English late in the summer and in that short time has done a masterful job. Practically a new team was built around two veterans from last year's squad.

The team's work has been the big surprise of the Fall. At the start of the season not a chance was given the Blue and Blue. Conditions have changed, however, and now English is favored to win over Commerce.

The objective for the English team is the Latin school game on Thanksgiving day, yet English fans want this contest as the big game of the year. English is better than the Purple and White team on paper and should win without question.

Commerce has been the victim of a bad break. It devoted many hours of strenuous work to develop the team. On paper, Commerce is as strong as English, but their record in out-of-season games was not so brilliant.

The two Georges, Buckley and Carby, are the ends and regarded as two of the best in the city. Commerce bases its hopes on their ability to block punts and get behind the other team's line.

Frank Corby and Kerchan are a pair of busy tackles, sure to cover themselves with glory in this contest. For guards Commerce has Eddie Connolly and Captain Carmichael and Scott is centre.

PURPLE SMOKER ON THE NIGHT BEFORE GAME

Daniel J. Triggs, '09, president of the Holy Cross Club of Boston, has appointed committees to make plans for the informal football smoker to be held at Hotel Lenox on November 20, the night before the Boston College-Holy Cross game.

The Holy Cross Alumni of Boston will hold open houses for all Holy Cross men and their friends who are in Boston for the big game. You Wonder at HIM, and Wonder More at His FOLLOWERS

Copyright, 1912, Star Co.

This is Frederick William Hohenzollern, and he thinks Germany wants him and ought to HAVE him as Emperor. In the language of modern youth, "Wouldn't that Rockefeller?"

This face, with the mop of hair on top, would attract attention if you were passing a reformatory for young men. You would look at it, right and say, "I am afraid they will have a hard time with him."

They did have a hard time with him in Germany, in 1914 and later. He is the young gentleman that is credited with driving his father into the war. His father was contented to be "William the Industrialist," William the builder, William the merchant. He did not demand to be "William the Great."

But this young gentleman, then "Crown Prince," despised everything but fighting and victory. He intended to be "Frederick the Great, No. 2," whatever papa might do. He was the one that talked about "Der Tag." He was the one that urged the officers of his army to cut down with their sabres anybody that had the insolence to fall in deepest respect for "his Royal and Imperial Majesty's" uniform.

Now look at him. Doesn't it make you wonder when you see this face, the slanting forehead, eyes close together, weak chin?

Can you imagine this kind of a man thinking that HE, after his family led Germany into the most horrible disaster, should be put back, with a chance to do the same thing over again?

Can you imagine his believing the people of Germany, solid, level headed, hard workers, great enough fools to want HIM back?

There are many wonderful things in this world, from Niagara Falls, in the northern part of New York State, to the Taj Mahal, in India. But nothing is more truly wonderful than the conceit of this young person.

However, the story from Germany is that the German Republic let him come back from Holland, not because Germany wants Frederick William, but because the German Republic wants something to offset the royalist Catholic movement in Bavaria, and thinks that this Protestant Hohenzollern with his pretensions may be useful.

If Protestant royalty and Catholic royalty can be kept opposing each other, perhaps republican common sense might have a chance. That's the theory of those now running the German Republic. They may be right; that may be wrong. Look at this face and you'll see that the modern breed of "Royalties" can't last long, anyhow.

Edward Everett Flits

Grandson of Famous Bay State Man Irritated Over the Eighteenth Amendment

The news that Edward Everett, grandson of one of America's greatest orators, Governor of Massachusetts and Ambassador to England, is selling his property in America and is proposing to expatriate himself to the gambling hell of Monte Carlo, never to return while prohibition reigns in America, is very interesting.

There are two interesting things about this announcement which ought to please all of us and nothing which ought to cause us regret. It is evident from Mr. Edward Everett's irritation that prohibition is getting to be more and more effective. When a man who can afford to live at Monte Carlo finds it difficult to get liquor in America which a reasonable man would drink, we are approaching the time when prohibition is beginning to prohibit pretty well.

But what an American Mr. Edward Everett must be to leave his country because he resents a law passed to increase his country's productivity, and to save that large part of humanity which is unable to use intoxicating liquor moderately. If the soul of the great Edward Everett has a finite existence in the Great Beyond, it must be receiving irritating waves from the earth set up by his grandson's contumacy. But he will alone not be humiliated, for it is the law of the great to have their intellectual and moral calibre attuned to the vanishing point by their descendants.

Lives of great men all remind us that we can make our lives sublime. The old adage that it is only slaves to shiraleaves included as much as financial.

Will Your Widow Dress as Well as Your Wife?

WITHOUT the interruption of death men long ago would have stopped dreaming about a comforting Hereafter in order to stand about their hands in their pockets admiring their handiwork. Here and now, as it is, they are largely creatures of hope. And hope, by the way, is the mother, not the sister, of charity. Therefore—

Last year New York city paid $5,000,000 in "charities" to widowed mothers of otherwise destitute children. This great charity was made necessary because of the usual hardworking fathers died before they could rear their families or save for the uncertain day. A great risk could not be run, these women and their children suffer.

When I wash my dress I have to go with my little girl to get it done. My shoes are very poor and need strings to lace them. I would like some kind of getting up and see me or send me something to wear. I take also 44 dresses or coat and size 4 shoes very wide. How glad I would be to have something to wear. I am used to the small amount of food I can get for $2, or think I am. I have no hope of getting any more than this. I wish, but trust it all to our Maker.

Says Men Should Fix Up Editor Boston American:

Why shouldn't men make up some as the women of today? The average woman, every part of her from cerebrum to her pedal extremities, is false. False hair, false teeth, rouged cheeks, painted lips, pencilled eyebrows and eyelids, bella-donna in their eyes to make a false brightness. Their torso is like a battleship, shaped with ribs of steel. Their pedals pinched into too small a shape. Their clothes show to tend to their attractiveness. Counterfeit in every sense. Why should not men do the same thing? Paint their bald heads and fix up their faces. It is an unfair game that does not play both ways.

JAMES MULLIN.

Only a Few False Editor Boston American:

I want to contradict James Mullin in his assertions that the women of today are mostly false. It is only the small minority of the women who are made up to such an extent as he writes. J. M. doesn't show a familiarity with the different types of women when he condemns all women by a few belladonna women. Most of the men are O. K. as they are, but some of them are so false on the inside that it is unnecessary for them to make up. ADA WILSON.

THE WHEEL DIVIDES BARBARISM AND CIVILIZATION

By Herbert Kaufman

CIVILIZATION is a wheel. Man begins to ride out of barbarism when his first mounts a cart.

Carts require roads. Roads create traffic. Regular traffic picks camping spots. Camping spots are decided by the presence of springs or streams. Water means firewood and grazing for animals.

Soon, structures appear on these sites, shakedown proceeds permanent shelters. Then come inns and supply stations, a scatter of domiciles and a village.

Highways produce a string of such cases—in the beginning a hunger's breath apart—then increasing habitation knits the little units. Settlements situated at a confluence of rivers or a crossing of trails become fixtures.

Remeasured by Invention's Yardsticks

East, West, North and South ship their goods in and out. Craftsmen gradually concentrate there. Manufacturing and commerce expand. The immediate hinterlands are favored by accessible buying and selling markets.

Difficulties of maintenance and distribution are eliminated. Grain and meat grower and timber cutter flourish. Suburbs encroach upon their lands. Pavements push out. Fields, purchased by the acre, are sold by the foot. The neighborhood can no longer afford to devote high priced section to wheat raising, truck gardening and dairying.

The tide shifts. Basic commodities are brought from fresh lands. Construction estimates mount with multiplied handling and middleman charges. All overheads climb, dragging salaries and expenses to new levels. Opportunities diminish with heavier capital requirements. Youthful ambitions rebel against financial barriers. Shrewd balance sheets express dissatisfaction between profit and loss.

Undeveloped districts are surveyed, their productivity investigated, distances to harbor and terminal remeasured by invention's yardsticks and necessity's bids for fundamentals of existence.

Justice Was First a Shepherdess

The projected railroad that couldn't return interest on investment a decade ago suddenly assures dividends to its promoters because an excess of population in congested centers and an inadequate yield of edibles, fuel, timbers and fabrics bases from kitchen sufficient areas are now ready to provide the energy and enterprise to justify the opening of another virgin stretch.

There's recent history in a few paragraphs, and that's pretty much what happened, too, in patriarchal days. It's occurring in 1923.

Aboriginal wealth is in cattle and fleece. Law and order and progress trace back to the plowman and the shepherd. The Greek word for law and the Greek word for flocks are identical.

As soon as there's property there must be property protection—therefore land titles. Thou shalt not seize thy neighbor's meadows, nor his sheep nor his kine.

Clock Watchers, Not Map Measurers

Pioneers bring plow, kine and sheep with them to insure food and raiment for their families.

After the increment of their cows and ewes exceeds personal needs they turn to ranching, and follow the range until overworking forces them into the sparser forest clearings. Only when free range is gone do they think of growing forage.

Whereupon, corn, alfalfa and barley are planted. The steer gives way to blooded beef stock and milk strains. The leading pen at the water tank is shored aside by creameries and great warehouses of general merchandise stores.

The sawmill up in the hills encourages a snail plant in the settlement.

Spur track and telegrapher's shack disappear. A branch line with a commuter station and freight agent replace them. The village takes root and a city succeeds, spreads and absorbs nearer farms. So metropolises are made.

The processes are entirely regulated by available systems of communication and transport. Development responds to traffic facilities. Commerce and manufacturing are clock watchers, not map measurers.

Taking Horace's Advice

So long as it took drive a prairie-schooner from the Atlantic to the Pacific, the west coast didn't attract merchants and bankers on the Atlantic seaboard. Nor when stagecoaches, at their fastest gallop, consumed three months on the trip.

Traders first seriously considered possibilities in California, Washington and Oregon when they watched the pony express arrive at San Francisco sixty days after leaving New York.

Seattle and Tacoma and Spokane rode into existence on a fifteen-day train.

From the moment locomotives could carry a transcontinental shipment either way in ninety-six hours—the instant "white horses" were hitched to Great Divide roads and the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul contracted ninety-hour delivery from Puget Sound docks to European steamship holds—industrial captains went into session, compared the advantages of further intensification in glutted high-range, heavy overhead, long-haul territory, with cheaper operation among the profusions of the Pacific Northwest, visualized sky freighters rushing goods to any of the four borders in the United States in less than half a sun-trip, took Horace Greely's advice and planned Northwestward migrations.

Wright, the Bridge Builder

Seattle, by grace of commercialized aviation, will be nearer Philadelphia in 1930 than Chicago was in 1920.

In ten years her aviators will sweep over hills and into valleys through which coyotes sneak tonight and vain cock-pheasants preened this morning.

It's just a matter of months before factory sirens will be sounding where quail are now whistling.

Opportunity has moved her bargain counters over the Rockies. The last great choice of ground-floor chances is among the timber tracts and pastures, the orchards, berry fields and mines and the waterfalls, fisheries and grain acreage of Washington and Oregon and Idaho and California. They're going, going, gone when the Wrights hold the Wright bill narrows the space between Sequoias and Niagara to a mere afternoon run.

What an Avalanche in the Alps Did to an American Girl

It Buried Her, Scalped Her, and but for a Lucky Ledge and a Miraculous Rescue It Would Have Killed Her, High on the Jungfrau

"I looked upward. A stone came bounding by me. And then I saw, roaring and banging straight toward me, a great mass of loose earth, as if the whole mountain top were tumbling down."

Pretty Betty Short, the 18-Year-Old San Franciscan, whose Face Was Unmarred by the Jungfrau Avalanche.

TO face onrushing, violent death—

To see it coming, an avalanche of rock—

To cling, helpless, to an icy slope, unable to move for seconds that seemed longer than hours—

Then a crash, blackness and oblivion.

Betty Short, San Francisco beauty, eighteen years old and an intrepid mountain climber, attempted the daring feat of scaling the Jungfrau, one of the tallest and most dangerous peaks in Switzerland, accompanied by a single guide.

When only a few hundred feet from the summit she was struck and buried by an avalanche of earth and rock. By what seemed a miracle she escaped death, and is now back in America, telling her friends of the thrilling and terrifying experience.

Her face was not marred by the tragedy, and she is as pretty as ever. But she wears a chic brunette wig, for she was almost scalped by the jagged rocks. Her head had to be shaved, and above her forehead, fortunately far enough back not to spoil her beauty, is a scar eight inches long, which she will probably carry to her death.

How does it feel to be buried by an avalanche?

Few people have survived to tell about it, but Betty Short describes her experience with vivid simplicity.

"My mother and I had been in Zurich, spending the Summer. I had done some mountain climbing, with parties and guides, but nothing extraordinary. Later we went to the little town of Wengen, near the foot of the Jungfrau, one of the highest and most beautiful mountains in the Bernese Alps. I believe its summit is a little less than 14,000 feet.

"It is not so jagged as the Matterhorn, but a more or less symmetrical, towering cone, more like Mont Blanc. It has, of course, been climbed, but it is always a dangerous undertaking—long, steep, icy slopes, in which it is necessary to cut every foothold with an axe.

"As I sat at my hotel window, looking at the Jungfrau towering into the clouds, it occurred to me that it would be a really wonderful thing for a young American girl to do—to reach the top.

"Friends tried to deter me. They pointed out, and it was true, that sixteen people, some of them native-born Swiss guides, had been killed during the Summer. And only two days before I undertook the ascent an English climber, Sir Arthur Hayden, and two guides had perished on those very slopes.

"For some reason these tragedies made me only the more unwilling to give up the project.

So one morning, with several trusted guides, I went in a motor car to the base of the mountain, and we undertook the ascent. My costume was not at all like those you see in the movies. I wore trousers, loose ones, and over them, a heavy short smock, with a fur-lined hood attached. The first two hours were hard, uphill walking.

"Then we came to the real ascent, steep, mostly covered with ice. Before beginning it, a guide fastened stout ropes around my waist and the other and around his own, so that we were attached by a length of some thirty feet.

"Sometimes we came to crevasses, treacherous rifts in the ice, which had to be skirted, or to snowdrifts in depressions, around which we had to go.

"But as the morning wore on, we got by these things safely. We were only a few hundred feet from the summit when the tragedy occurred. It was caused by a very peculiar circumstance. One speaks of the 'eternal snows' on the summits of Alpine peaks like the Jungfrau, and the snow there does seem almost everlasting. But last Summer, for the first time in many years, part of the snow on the summit had melted, leaving rocks, stones and boulders bare.

"It seems that some of these got loose and started sliding down the slope. As they slid, they dislodged others. I was clinging to the steps cut by the guide in the ice, on a steep slope, but luckily just a few feet above a rocky platform. The guide was working a little higher, and at almost the full length of the rope, off at the right. Had he been closer to me, we both would have been killed.

"We both heard a rumbling far above our heads. We must have heard it simultaneously, for at the same instant I also heard him about a warning.

"I looked upward. A stone, and then another, came bounding by me. And then I saw, roaring and banging straight toward me, a great mass of loose earth, as if the whole mountain top were tumbling down.

"I think that in the first instant I realized exactly what it was. I was directly in the path of an avalanche, and I believed that I would surely be killed. There was nothing I could do. I just clung to the rock and waited for death.

"I think it is true that in such moments the mind races in a way that makes the time seem longer than it really is. In the few brief seconds before I was struck by the avalanche I remember several definite reflections. One was that my mother would be awfully unhappy. Another was to wonder how much pain I would feel. But my most vivid thoughts were of the waste and uselessness involved in such a death.

"It came, suddenly, like a thunder-clap. There was a crash, and then blackness. I remembered nothing more, until I regained consciousness the following day in the hospital at Wengen, with my mother and the doctors bending over me."

What had happened was that a boulder had struck Miss Short on the top of the head. She had been knocked unconscious and thrown to the shelving plateau a few feet below, where she was buried beneath stones and loose dirt. The guide escaped injury.

Five hours later, with the aid of eight other guides, she was taken down the mountain, still unconscious. By what seemed a miracle none of her bones was broken, and she had received no permanent injury other than the gash in her head.

She is now with her mother in New York, full of vitality and ambition, seemingly in perfect health. And perhaps the most extraordinary feature of her story is that she says: "If I live until next Summer, I am going back to Switzerland, and I am going to climb to the summit of the Jungfrau."

Medbury Says—

By John P. Medbury

THE most tragic moments in a boy's life are the times when he has to wash his neck and ears. The average kid believes that soap and water was thought up by the same guy who invented caesar oil.

THEY figure that assies are the only ones who go out on the street with clean faces.

TO most boys a bathtub is an instrument of torture.

THEY think it's a waste of time to wash their face when it only gets dirty again.

ONE kid hated water so that he asked his mother if she would let him use a vacuum cleaner on his ears.

NOT only that, but he wanted her to wash his neck with a whisk broom.

HE said, "I'd like to try this dry cleaning that I've heard so much about."

ONE kid always got frightened to death every time Saturday night came around.

SO his mother spoiled him by giving him chloroform before she put him in the tub.

OF course, he's a man now, but the habit is still with him, and he has to go to the hospital whenever he wants to take a bath.

THE intern has to give him ether and then wheel him into the bathroom.

EVEN to this day he thinks that a cube of soap is a deadly weapon.

A HIGHWAYMAN would have no trouble at all holding him up at the end of a scrubbing brush.

SO mothers should be careful and never force a bath on their children. It may frighten them when they grow up.

AND, IN ADDITION, THE WORKMAN HAS A BUSS TO PLEASE.

As an employer you probably look at some of your employees, at times, and say that you would be willing to change places with them.

"So many hours a day Mr. So and So has to work, and then he is free of worry and work; what would I give to trade places with him?"

But if you would consider the statement for a moment, you would see that it is not true, literally.

Any worthwhile man who commands a good salary does not forget his job the minute he leaves the shop or the office.

With pleasing a perhaps whimsical employer, solving household problems and the anxiety which comes from contemplating those which would make his income cease, your employee is thinking hard.

The workmen you have are not so free from care and trouble as you choose to imagine—and remember that they have a home to please in addition to making services profitable.

Last night while on a car, I had my umbrella hanging on my arm. I dropped my fare into the box as I stepped and walked up front and sat down. I was very much embarrassed when the conductor came up and asked me to open my umbrella, and doing so, found that my fare had dropped into it instead of the fare box.
